WILL APPOMATTOX
HAVE JOBS TO OFFER?

Appomattox, like many other communities, must turn its attention to the problem of returning war veterans to the civilian life. It can only be guessed just how many jobs should be made available. It is uncertain how many war workers will return here and how soon. Likewise, the members of the armed forces.

Provided a major portion of the veterans and workers will accept jobs associated with the civilian and agricultural pursuits, we may not be in such bad shape, for each of these offers good opportunities in this area. Our farms have been under-manned for several years. Farm prices should remain high for a number of years, and the approaching construction boom is likely to supplement the steady demand existing for timber products.

The small dairy business offers an excellent opportunity, thanks to a fine milk station here.

The building trades can offer employment to many. Many additional small business establishments could probably be opened here. Appomattox needs expansion of its retail and service establishments.

We do not know just what can be done to provide other sources of jobs. Certainly efforts should be made to have work reverts to the civilian life. Restoration at an early date. Such agencies as the State Highway Department will doubtless expand activities, and employment.

An alert eye should be kept open for an additional small business plant that would be able to get into 100 men. We can furnish the labor.

We must lay a firm foundation of steady jobs so that a possible post-war depression will not catch us napping. We do not want large numbers of our fine young men who have served so honorably during the war and learned skilled trades to have to leave Appomattox after their long-awaited return, looking for jobs. Let's work together to see that good jobs are made available. We will be glad to hear from any reader who has a suggestion to offer.

KEEPER AS SOUVENIR

Several times during the past week we have heard motorists ask what they should do with the souvenirs they have picked up on the road. We have heard them ask for suggestions on how to handle them. We have heard them ask for suggestions on how to handle them.

COURAGE PAYS DIVIDENDS

From Christian Science Monitor
Last month a nation's courage was deeply stirred by the courage of a "disabled" veteran just returned from the Pacific. This week it was the veteran's turn to be stirred and cheered by the courage of his fellow citizens who responded to his plight but to his plea.

With the lower parts of both October and with a year or two of hospital experience still before him, Master Sergeant Frederic Hensel of Corin, Kentucky cheerfully announced plans to go back to the chicken farm business. He didn't want pay, and he didn't get it. He didn't want a man like that to be a chicken farmer. He didn't want a man like that to be a chicken farmer. He didn't want a man like that to be a chicken farmer.

OUR PEACETIME ECONOMY

From N.Y. World Telegram

The ending of the war presents big problems for our civilian economy. The war effort has accounted for almost half the economic activity of the home front. The Federal Government has been spending more than $7,500,000,000 a month to insure the attainment of victory. Millions of workers have transferred to new jobs. Key segments of American industry have converted to war production. More than 10,000,000 men have been taken from their normal civilian pursuits and brought part of an armament program. The war has created a gap between old and new. Now suddenly a gap must be created. The tremendous wartime demand will be substantially reduced.

COVERED WITH WHEELS

Recently this modest department pointed out the absurdity of the common expression "covered with wheels." Explaining that a "wheel" is the part of a dog or wheel, it was also explained that a shoe or piece of cloth could have "wheels" but not a person's skin.

My readers asked that "wheel" for a ride raised on the skin of a swilling as a misnomer, but an insect bite has been defined "well" as correct. They have defended "well" as correct. They have defended "well" as correct. They have defended "well" as correct.

CHINESE PUZZLE

Weakest member of the Four Major Powers is China. This vast country with its 450 million people has never had a real central government. It is a collection of fiefdoms, each with its own ruler. ADVICE TO THE SHOWBORN

This is a message of advice to the many young women who have become housewives and food shoppers since the war began. Points may still be a part of your life for a year or two. Sometime you are going to have to recover your marketing technique to peacetime requirements. And right now isn't too soon to give you a few of the facts of peacetime life, if your mothers haven't already done so.

Minute Make-Ups

By GABRIELLE

For the most "young" look, try this "hot" tip. Apply a thin layer of makeup to your face. It will give you a fresh, youthful appearance. It will give you a fresh, youthful appearance. It will give you a fresh, youthful appearance.
